Overview

In 2013, Career Services surveyed SEAS Master’s Candidates from the Class of 2014 to gather information about their summer experiences. Information was obtained for 253 (50%) of the 505 Master’s candidates expected to receive degrees in December 2013, May 2014 and August 2014.

In all sections of this report, average salaries were calculated based on students working within the United States. The overall average monthly salary for SEAS Master’s internship-employed respondents was $4,400. 75% of candidates received their 2013 summer employment offers between March – May 2013. Of those respondents that reported summer employment, Manufacturing, and Technology were the top two industries at 57% combined. Within Manufacturing, 33% of those employed were in Electronics/Robotics and 17% accepted positions with Consumer Product companies. The most common job types were Information Technology (55%) and Engineering (28%); of the 28% in Engineering, 65% were involved in Research & Development.

Methodology

A complete list of Master’s students expected to graduate in December 2013, May 2014 or August 2014, excluding students in the Executive Masters of Technology and Management program, was provided by the SEAS Academic Programs Office. Students were invited by email and in weekly newsletter messages to complete the Summer Career Experiences Survey on the Career Services website. In addition, employment data was collected from the SEAS Academic Programs Office through Curricular Practical Training requests.
