Industries Employing Wharton Interns

How Students Obtained Internships

While students continued to intern in a variety of industries, investment banking, consulting and investment management were the most popular.

The percentage of students employed in the nonprofit, education and government industries combined this year more than doubled from the Class of 2008 summer employment report. Also notable was an increase in the percentage of students employed in the communications industry and a decrease in those employed in real estate compared to last year's summer employment report.

Similar to last year, almost 61% of students who reported how they heard about their internship indicated it was through the On-Campus Recruiting program or other Career Services leads. Networking and applying directly for internships also proved beneficial for students.
